

Hey Dads,

Here's How to Team Up with Your Wife for Parenting Success

Feeling overwhelmed or even nervous? Teaming up with your wife can help you navigate the challenges of parenthood and build your confidence in your new role. Here are some tips to help you along this exciting journey:

Be present for your baby

Make time for quality interaction every day. As dads, you have a huge impact on your child's development and overall well-being. You're like a superhero to them!

Be involved in your baby's everyday routine

Practice makes perfect, take every opportunity you have to be involved with your child! Do not be discouraged if you receive criticism for not knowing how to care for your baby at first. Assure the person you will get better with practice and over time, you will feel more confident as a father. You've got this!

It doesn't have to be a solo effort! As a father, you can support your wife through parenting by working together as a team. Here's how:

Share the load. Help out with household chores while your wife feeds the baby.

Take turns caring for the baby and schedule rest time for both parents by rotating night feed shifts.

Communicate, provide a listening ear and be encouraging.

Being a new father can be understandably challenging and you might feel lost, but be patient with yourself. If you need support, be sure to connect with other fathers, your friends and family!
